SUSPENSION OF PLATE GLASS WORKS ORDERED

Charleroi Affected by General Order Just Issued

MAY NOT BE FOR LONG

Surplus of Stock in Sales Room is Given as Reason of Close Down

For the purpose of curtailing plate glass production over the country until the surplus stock already on hand has been disposed of, an indefinite suspension has been ordered of several plants of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company, and of practically all the independent plate glass manufacturing concerns. By the general order, the Charleroi plant will be affected, and operations will be suspended along with those at other plants on July 1. In the neighborhood of 700 men will be made idle locally.

Plate glass manufactories are about the least affected by a business depression. During the past several months the production of plate glass has been growing until now there is not a sales department of any plant in the country but what is overcrowded, making a suspension of manufacturing operations inevitable.

It is hoped that theshut-down will last only a month or so but it is possible it may be extended farther. Business conditions will be the gauge, and until the sales department is cleared of the surplus, the suspension will continue. As far as manufacturing conditions are concerned at the local plant, general results and quality of product were never better.

At factory No. 6 at Charleroi, of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, two departments will be kept in operation, the Carrara and Pot house departments. In these two parts about 100 men are employed.

A. H. Chandler, superintendent of the local plant, this morning said: "It is an impossibility to say how long the suspension will last. We hope only a brief time. The sales department is over-crowded and until this congestion is relieved, no start will be ordered. Other plate glass manufactories are affected including the independent factories. This is as much as I can say."

In the neighborhood of 700 men are employed at the Charleroi plate glass works, and the pay roll averages about $37,000 monthly. Charleroi is particularly fortunate that the factory did not close before, as business conditions are such that steel mills and other industries elsewhere have been idle the greater part of the year.

BLOOMER GIRLS PLAY AT LOCAL PARK TONIGHT

Everything is in readiness for the benefit game between the Bloomer Girls and a picked club from the Church League teams. A lot of interest is being manifested and indications point to a big crowd. The game is called at 6 o'clock, and the proceeds are for the public playgrounds fund.

W. C. T. U. to Visit Merchants

Matter of Cigarette Selling to Minors to be Taken up by Women

At the residence of Mrs. J. S. Crawford of Lookout avenue the regular monthly meeting of the W.C. T.U. was held Tuesday evening. Regular routine bussiness was transacted, among which was a report of the committee on a public drinking fountain and the courteous hearing accorded them by the genial borough councilmen.

The result of the joint conference is that in the very near future Charleroi will have one and possibly two beautiful fountains, where both man and beast may slake their thirst. Committees were appointed to wait on the merchants dealing in tobacco and cigars, give them a copy of the law relative to the sale of cigarets and tobacco to minors and kindly ask them ta refresh their memory as to the penalty attached to the breaking of that important legislation. Miss Marie Whitehead than favored the Uuion with a recitation after which the meeting adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs R. J. Whitehead, Tuesday evening.

Proceeds of "500" Party to go for Juvenile Court

WORK THAT IS BEING DONE

On Friday afternoon the local Juvenile Court Committee will give a Charity 500 party in the Elks' Home and the patronage of the public is most earnestly desired. Nothing has been collected for this fund for three years and the committee is facing a depleted treasury with a constant demand upon it. During the year eight cildren have been placed in homes of maintenance through the efforts of this committee and the children thus cared for had transguessed no laws, but were simply denied their divine rights of a home and proper persons to care for them. This is not Juvenile court work, but the local committee has also in a manner been a home missionary board. During the year the Athene Club donated $5 which has been the only local contribution. Possibly no one knows so well as the police officers and the justices just how many appeals are made to the committee who gladly donate their services, but must kindly ask the assistance of the public for financial aid. The detention room for the court at the county seat has been removed from the jail and the delinquent children are cared for temporarily in a small home near the court house which is in charge of a matron. Here they are completely away from adult persons, and surrounded by good influences. Each Friday morning the youthful

WOMAN FOUND DEAD ON THE FLOOR AFTER FLASH OF LICHTNING

Mother of Speers Man Struck and Instantly Killed During Electrical Storm at Connellsville

Harry Shelton, of Speers, who is employed by the plumbing firm of Regan and Hormell of Charleroi Tuesday afternoon late received a telegram announcing the death of his mother a short while before at Connellsville, who was struck with lightning. Mr. Shelton and his sister, a girl about 16 years old, went to Connellsville this morning.

During the storm Tuesday afternoon Mrs Shelton, aged 42 years, and her daughter Cecelia, 14 years old, were papering an upstairs room. Mr. Shelton, who is partly crippled was in a lower room. When a brilliant flash of lightning came he felt an intense heat and a quiver of the house. He went up stairs and found his wife lying across a chair dead, her right shoe torn off and a line burned along her body to the head. The daughter was on the floor unconscious. The woman leaves a husband and nine children.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR BUSINESS BLOCK

George S. Might to Put up Large Store and Office Building on Fifth and Fallowfield

EXCAVATION WORK TO BEGIN MONDAY

George S. Might this morning announced the award of the contract for the erection of his large store and office building to be built on recently purchased ground on Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue, surrounding the Charleroi Savings and Trust company, had been made to S. K. Scott of Charleroi. The contract price was not made public. Work will start on Monday.

The building will occupy 50 feet front space on Fifth street and will extend back 94 feet. On Fallowfield avenue the building will have a frontage of 25 feet, at the rear of the Charleroi Savings and Trust company. Plans were drawn by Architect J. C. Brenton.

Two large store rooms will occupy the first floor, one of them extending to and having entrances on both Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue. A center entrance will be provided for office rooms on the second floor on Fifth street. On Fallowfield avenue a side entrance will be provided.

The second floor will be divided into spacious office rooms, 12 of which will be in the main building and two of which will be in the Fallowfield avenue structure. A hallway will run the entire length.

On the third floor will be a large auditorium, fitted up for various purposes.

Windows will be cut in the building from all sides. The frame work will be of steel. The interior finish will be in hard wood. There will be a finished basement, to be used as a store room, or for whatever purpose necessary.

HAS LEG BROKEN BY AUTOMOBILE

Morris Coulter Sustains Severe Injury While at Work Under Machine

Caught underneath a heavy automobile making repairs Morris Coulter, an employe at Spencer's garage, sustained a compound fracture of his leg Tuesday evening. He was taken to the Memorial hospital, Monongahela, where this morning he was said to be getting along well. The automobile under which Coulter was working was supported by a jack This jack skidded and let the automobile down full force upon Coulter and a fellow employe. Coulter was the only one hurt.

LIGHTNING MAKES MERRY ABOUT TOWN

Frequent Flashes During Storm and Peals of Thunder Make People Nervous

With lightning playing hide-and-go-seek and heavenly artillery reverberating back and forth, a heavy thunder storm occured Tuesday afternoon in this vicinity. As far as can be learned no damage was done.

During the storm lightning grounded once near Fifth street, and people were given a bad scare by what seemed to be balls of fire leaping through windows and jumping around. Nobody was hurt.

"BOOSTER DAY" FOR CHURCH LEAGUE

Treasury is Somewhat Shy, and Effort Will Be Made to Replenish It

The help of base ball fans in general is respectfully solicited by the promoters of the Church Base Ball League in an endeavor to meet outstanding obligations. Prior to the opening of the season, an expense of over $200 was incurred in repairs to the fence around the grounds, repairs to the grand stand and other improvements. This, together with an investment of nearly $100 in balls and other necessaries placed a heavy burden upon the promoters, which could only be met by the receipts of the box office. Unfortunately the latter have not come up to expectations, and it has been deemed expedient to try to raise the necessary funds by other means. To this end, a "Booster's Day" has been decided upon, and the executive board of the league earnestly asks the support of all lovers of the game on this occasion. The date of June 19 has been chosen, and the contending teams will be the Catholices and the Methodists. The game will be called at the usual hour. Tags will be sold by members of the different teams and their friends, and a small admission will be charged the ladies.

Bruce Furnier Is Recovering

Man Who Fell Down Stairs at Memorial Hospital, Monongahela

Word received this morning from the Memorial Hospital, Monongahela, was to the effect that Bruce Furnier, the California man who last Saturday was severely injured in a fall down a flight of stairs in the Piper building, on Fallowfield avenue, is getting along favorably. His recovery is expected, provided nothing unforseen occurs. Furnier's worst injuries were about his head. He has regained consciousness.

BRINGS COW TO TOWN

Man Out to See Sights Hitches Bovine to Nearby Pole

THEN QUENCHES THIRST

Marching down the main street, evidence of rural civilization, with a cow attached to the business end of a rope, John Something-or-other, calmly hunted the nearest pole to the nearest saloon this morning, and as calmly made war on the merry hop juice. Then John, with a name like a Siberian cuss-word, calmly marched out of the said saloon, wiping his mouth, unhitched his cud-chewing bovine, and marched on. This was the vaudeville witnessed this morning by citizens in the business center of town. John seemed to think it was the precise thing to do to hitch his cow to the nearest telephone pole and consequently did it. It has not been learned whether he was emigrating to another locality or not, but he was headed north, and was thirsty.

County Commissioners Place Highway Work

OVER 21 MILES IN LOT

County Now Pays State Tax on $500,000 Bond Issue --Advertise Sale of Bonds

Pursuing their policy of liberal public expenditures, the county commissioners on Tuesday authorized the improvement of 21 miles of the 51 1-2 miles of county roads for which they recently petitioned the grand jury, and which was approved by that body. There are 10 sections of the 21 miles located in various parts of the county. The longest section is 3 1-2 miles and the shortest section is half a mile, the average being 2 1-10 miles.

The commissioners also called for proposals for the purchase of the $500,000 bond issue for which they asked from the grand jury, and which was granted. These bonds are to be issued in series of $25,000 and are to date from August 15, 1911, maturing serially each year from 1912 to 1931. They are to bear 4 per cent interest, and be tax free. This latter provision means that the county will pay the State tax of 4 mills, making the interest rate in reality 4 and 4-10 per cent. The bonded debt of the county including this issue is $1,887,000 and the tax rate is $3.25 per $1,000.

BACHELOR GIRLS HOLD NICE DANCE

First Affair of Summer Season is Given by Popular Charleroi Club

With about 100 couples present, one of the most interesting dances ever given by the Bachelor Girls' Club of Charleroi, was held Tuesday evening at Eldora Park. The affair was the first summer dance to be given by the popular club, and people came from many places to attend it. With Wheeler's orchestrta furnishing the music dancing was from 8:30 o'clock until 1. A grand march which was led by the members of the Bachelor Girls' club, preceded the dancing. People was present from Brownsville Monessen, Charleroi, Monongahela, Donora, California, Fayette City, Pittsburg, Uniontown and other places

CONSERVING MORALS.

Because there is no safe place for small boys to swim along the river, four were drowned within our county limits last month. That was the coroner's report. Before the summer is ended the death toll will in all probability be greatly augmented by this source. If the public could provide what is lacking in this respect, there would have been no deaths on this account.

It is perfectly easy to trace cause and effect in physical matters. Four deaths in one month in one community because of public dereliction in what highly civilized communities provide, is a startling loss; but what about the moral delinquencies? How many small boys are corrupted each season during vacation because they have no rational place to play and amuse themselves? There is some objections in Charleroi to the appropriation by council to help maintain a playground Would there be any objections to this expenditure if it were known it would positively save the lives of the children of some of our citizens? Scarcely; and there should be no more objections to saving the morals as well as the lives of the juveniles.

There's a big crop of young hopefuls loosed from the apron strings for the first time this vacation. What will happen to them if permitted to roam at large, as the most of them do during vacation? They'll learn to cuss like pirates, shoot craps down on the river bank, smoke cigarets and become acquainted in all sorts of vile language and practices. Most parents think their own hopefuls are exceptions, but let each do a little private detective work, and they will more than likely receive a shock. It is to prevent these shocks that the playgrounds is designed. What safeguarded swimming pools do in saving life, the public playground accomplishes in conserving morals. The money appropriated by council for the playground is the best public investment ever made.

A GREAT WORK.

Until the women of this country, in comparatively recent years, took up the matter of juvenile court work, the men, who do the voting and make the laws, paid absolutely no attention to the childish delinquent. They heartlessly cast them into jails and prisons with the old hardened offenders. There their bodies and souls festered in the vile physical and immoral surroundings, and what the child did not know in vice, it usually acquired during its term of imprisonment.

It was largely through the agitation of the women that the juvenile court has been established. This court is for the purpose of dealing separately with youthful offenders, and to keep them from coming in contact with adult criminals. Very grulgingly has the Commonwealth co-operated in this work, the greater part of which has to be borne by private charity. For this reason the local committee is making an appeal for funds. It will hold a benefit function and the money thus obtained will be devoted to reclaiming delinquent children and preventing them from becoming criminals The committee has done a good work in Charleroi, and the charity that thus appeals for aid is most worthy.

Oh, pshaw! We thought Carnegie and the rest of the peace advocates had peace assured down in Mexico.

The Washington Observer, following its usual course of reasoning, finds that because they were unfortunate enough to be appointed members of Pittsburg's council by Governor Tener a few men down at Pittsburg are bossed by one Penrose, and the inference follows that they are not worth a pinch of salt. It's so pleasant to always be pessimistic.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Do you believe in signs, warnings or premonitions?" was asked in a neighborly group the other evening. Although there were only a few present, a couple of them had experiences to relate along that line which were hard to account for. One of these was told by a middle-aged man who does not in the least believe in the supernatural, and who is a level-headed man of practical business ability.

"I was born in Germany," as you are well aware," he said, "and lived with my grandparents on a farm in Bohemia. When I was about 10 years old, I remember that one night I was sleeping with my grandfather, when I was awakened by hearing a woman's voice, apparently outside, calling my grandfather's name'--Joseph! Joseph!' the voice called imperatively.

"I awakened my grandfather, who was sleeping soundly, saying, 'Some one is calling you, Grandpap.' He awakened in time to hear the voice, and getting up, donned some clothing hastily, and went outside and looked around, but found nothing. In the morning at breakfast I remarked: 'Someap one called for grandp in the night.' My great-grandmother who lived with us, and was a women over 80 years old, said quietly: 'I suppose that means me.' Although she was in good health at the time, she died a week later.

"I afterward learned that it had long been a tradition in the family that previous to a death a voice in the night would call some one of the household. I never could account for the incident, but it made a deep impression upon me."

A women, a professional nurse, related a similar experience: "I was called to nurse a women, a farmer's wife. The farmer was also a contractor who built roads, and was away from home a part of the time. His wife was not bedfast when I went there, and it was largely on account of his absence that my services were secured. He came for me in his buggy, and we arrived at the farm house just before dinner.

"While we were eating in the dining room in the rear there came a loud rap at the front door which was closed Before the man of the house could walk across the floor, the raps were repeated twice more, making three in all. The man opened the door but could find no one. The house stood back 20 or 30 rods from the road and in the bright June sunlight it seemed impossible for any one to have gotten away so completely without being seen. The man came back, after a search all around the premises, and while we were talking and wondering about the mystery the woman's mother, whom I had come to relieve, remarked in an agitated voice:

"There was no one there. It was a warning. Mary is not going to get well!'

"Sure enough, the woman was taken worse a day or two after, and died within a couple of weeks."

The Mandarin's Robe.

The author of "Recollections of a Society Clairvoyant" tells of the case of a lady who was haunted by reason of a garment she wore. It was a mandarin's robe from China, stated to be part of the loot from the sack of Peking. The owner, who lived in a flat in a London suburb, first began to be alarmed by "a smell of decomposition in her bedroom" and heard "stealthy footsteps paddling along the tiny passage in and out of the sitting room." She changed her house but the obsession continued. The dreadful smell recurred, her cats died in great agony from some unknown cause, and uncanny footsteps were heard at night. According to the clairvoyant's diagnosis, the robe had belonged to "a man who had worn it when he engaged in the mystic forms of ceremonial magic known to the Chinese He had met with a violent death, and certain malignant forces were still imprisoned in his robe, which, from the bloodstains on it, he must have been wearing when he was killed." The curse was eventually dispelled by the robe being burned.

Ruskin and the Champion Bore.

One of the principal clubs in Pall Mall has the misfortune to be frequented by a gentleman who is by common consent the greatest bore and buttonholer in London. Some years ago this good man, on his return from his autumn holiday, was telling all his acquaintances at the club that he had been occupying a house at the lakes not far from Mr. Ruskin, who, he added, was in a very melancholy state.

"I am truly sorry for that," said one of his hearers. "What is the matter with him?"

"Well," replied the buttonholer, "I was walking one day in the lane which separated Ruskin's house from mine, and I saw him coming down the lane toward me. The moment he caught sight of me he darted into a wood which was close by and hid behind a tree till I had passed. Oh, very sad indeed!"—From "Collections and Recollections."

Clean Your Glasses.

The most scientifically fitted glasses in the world will do more harm than good unless they are properly kept and correctly worn. It is a strong statement to make, but most people wear dirty glasses, even those who are fastidiously careful in all other respects Peering through any clouded and uncertain window is a strain upon the vision How much more must the strain be when the window is so close to the eye that it is almost a part of it!

Glasses must be worn at the exact angle for which they were prescribed and no other. For this reason many people and all children do better in spectacles than in eyeglasses. The glasses should be fitted to the eye by the optician, after which care should be taken not to handle and loosen the frame. If this occurs in the slightest degree they should again be fitted and tightened.—Youth's Companion.

HEFFRAN DEATH A SAD AFFAIR

Daughter of Coroner and Mrs. J. T. Heffran Beloved by Speers People

To the Editor of the Charleroi Mail:

Sir—One of the saddest deaths that ever occurred in this community was that of LillianBeazell Heffran the nine year old daughter of Coroner and Mrs James T. Heflran of Speers. Although she had been sick for seven weeks, her case did not become alarming until a few hours before her death Besides her father and mother she leaves one sister Hazel and one brother, Harold. Lillian was the baby and naturally a favorite, not only at home but in the town. She was a pleasant loving girl, who met everybody, young and old with a smile and pleasant words. The writer has always known her and always found her to be a girl admired by all who knew her.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Speers with interment in the Howe cemetery. That she was loved by everybody was plain te see. Long before the hour for the services the church was filled to overflowing, and by the time the church was reached by the funeral it was found that not over one-half the people could gain an entrance to the church. The aisles and rear of the church were filled and we may say scarcely standing room on the church lawn. Every available seat was taken except the one Lillian always occupied in her Sunday school class.

Rev. L. Z. Robinson had charge of the services and was assiste by a former pastor, W. F. Seitter and Rev. Richards of the Charleroi M.E. church The singing was furnished by a part of the M. E. choir of Charleroi and was greatly appreciated not only by the immediate friends, but by all. The beautiful floral tributes were beyond anything ever witnessed by the writer. A number of sprays were sent and brought from Washington and other points away from home and that Lillian was loved by her own Sunday school and church was proven by the fact that ten sprays came from her own Sunday school and church, When the carriage came with the flowers eight young ladies met it and carried them to and from the church.

It was indeed a sad day at Speers. There were no dry eyes. Such a feeling cannot come over such a crowd of people very often and as her little girl friends bore her little body from the church the grief that overwhelmed all her playmates and in fact every bady will long be remembered. Lillian will not only be missed in her own home but in all homes she called on, and will be missed by all. While she has gone to her home in Heaven and is better off than those who miss her, yet one little voice is silent in our town. In school and Sunday school entertainments she was a leader of the children, always prepared and spoke and sang with a smile. In the Children's Day next Sunday evening her response song will be missed.

A FRIEND.

When on last Friday evening little Lillian Heffran entered into Heaven, there came a change over every man, women and child in this little town. Certainly a death always brings sorrow to friends and acquaintenances but there was something about this sweet little girl that caused her to be known to the adult population, better perhaps, than nine-tenths of the children living in a small village.

A little more than nine years of age neat in appearance, a quiet disposition, a pretty childish smile that rarely disappeared, is it surprising that she was loved by everyone? When the little casket was placed in the church Sunday afternoon, it was the center piece of a mass of beautiful flowers, sent by the several Sunday school classes and by individual friends from far and near. During the funeral services the class to which Lillian belonged was seated in their usual place wkith one little empty chair draped in mourning. Their teacher, Mrs C. K. Chalfant, sat with them and tried ta console them, but one by one they broke down and sobbed as though their little hearts would break. It finally became necessary to allow them to go back to their parents yet this did not stifle the pitiful weeping that was visibly affecting the older ones.

On Easter Sunday Lillian had taken part in the exercises and her manner of reciting had caused comment, even among strangers from other towns. She was to assist in the Children's day program and her piece had been assigned her, but recently she sent word to the committee that "she was afraid she couldn't recite."

Although Lillian Heffran is not here anymore, she will be remembered by her little playmates and by the older people who loved her because she was a sweet child, and for her sweet disposition. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of their many friends and the consolation of knowing that some day they will live with Lillian again, forever.

PAINTED HIS PORTRAIT.

His Wife Was the Artist, and the Result Wasn't Flattering.

A suburbanite but lately married went out to post a letter, and as the lamps had not been lit in the road in which he dwelt he could only dimly see his way. A short distance up the road he met, as he thought, his wife, who had been out to tea, and as he went past he just whispered:

"All right, my dear; I shall be with you in a minute."

Immediately after he had said these words he saw the lady turn a startled look upon him and then hurry away, and the horrible idea occurred to him that it was not his wife at all and that in the darkness he had made a mistake. He decided to say nothing about the matter and quickly disappeared.

When he returned home he found his wife waiting for him, and she at once greeted him with the words:

"Oh, George, I have had such a frightful experience! I was just coming down the road when a man tried to stop me and said, 'All right, dear; I shall be with you in a minute.' I ran home, found you out, and I've been so much alarmed."

George was just about to explain when an idea came to him.

"What sort of man was it?" he asked.

"Oh," replied the young wife, "I saw him quite plainly, and a more villainous face I never beheld in my life. He was a perfect monster, with crime stamped upon every feature."

George decided it was best to say nothing after all.—London Tit-Bits.

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration.

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American Independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. Instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous Impostors." "A young couple were about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

The Kangaroo Rat.

One of the queerest little animals of the antipodean wilds of the paradoxical continent of Australia is a little zoological oddity which the naturalists have called the kangaroo rat. It averages no larger than the common rodent of the Norway variety, but is a miniature kangaroo in every respect. Its mode of locomotion is precisely the same as that of Macropus giganteus. Besides this, the female carries its young in pouches which nature has provided for that purpose and in many other respects imitates the habits and characteristics of its gigantic relative.

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE.

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "instituts." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, college and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1806 this vast educational organization, with its countless professors, who control the entire intellectual training of France.—America.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next. One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr. Macready what he would play with Mr. Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed. "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr. Kean. "Sir," said Mr. Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Analogies.

"I understand your friend Jenkins has resigned that city clerkship he held."

"Resigned? H'm!"

"Oh, wasn't it voluntary?"

"Well, it was just as voluntary as his contributions to the campaign fund were."—Philadelphia Press.

Drilled to Perfection.

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him. Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles. One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swinging into a fierce charge upon the enemy. By daylight the Russians and Poles, who had thought to eat him up, were virtually annihilated.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson's Revenge.

Tom Osborne, the bookseller, was one of "that mercantile rugged race to which the delicacy of the poet is sometimes exposed."

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most liberal manner. Johnson heard him some time unmoved, but at last, losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor. Osborne alarmed the family by his cries, but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir until he had exposed him in that situation and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—From Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

The American Born Princess.

My father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, was in exile in the United States, and so it happened that I was born in America on the borders of the Delaware. I came into the world with the last sigh of the old year—that is to say, at midnight on the 31st of December, 1833. I have said that my father was in exile. When he was eleven years old his mother left Naples with her four children—two boys and two girls—and retired to the Chateau de Frohsdorff, taking the title of Comtesse de Lipona—Napoli transposed. There my father lived till he was joined by his uncle, the Emperor Napoleon's eldest brother, King Joseph of Spain, who on the fall of the first empire had retired to the United States and taken a lovely place near Bordentown, N. J., where he lived for eleven years as Count de Survilliers. It was at Bordentown that I entered this sorry world, my father having in 1831 married a Miss Carolina Georgina Fraser of Scotch origin, descending from the old family of Lovat.—Princess Caroline Murat's "Memoirs."

A Shock to Vanity.

"My wife gave me a birthday present that has a tendency to take the conceit out of any man who thinks he's good looking," said the man who shaves himself. "I confess that I have all along had a sort of sneaking idea that I had a little more than my share of manly beauty; that when it came to a showdown I was there with the goods. But not any more. I'm cured. And my wife's present did it. What was it? Why, simply one of those shaving glasses that magnify three times. The first time I used it I got a view of my face that rather startled me. Every blemish, every wild hair under the skin, every open pore, all the minute ugliness that isn't apparent to the naked eye—these things confronted me in all their magnified repulsiveness. I used the glass just once and then accidentally dropped it down the air shaft to the basement below. I don't want to look like a monstrosity every time I shave myself."—New York Times.

The Addition.

"What makes you act so grouchy this morning, Dobkins?"

"Had an addition to my family."

"What? Why, you ought to be ashamed to be gloomy over that! To think that a normal human being should be angry because of the advent of such a cherub! Do you actually grudge a place in your happy home to an innocent creature fresh from heaven, bringing with it the very fragrance of those celestial realms? Do you greet with an unwelcoming chill a small epitome of all purity and sweetness given into your keeping as a priceless though undeserved treasure by a too benevolent Providence? A lovely copy of what fancy feigns the angels to be like—a tiny shred of grace and glory snatched from the"—

"Say, that's very pretty, but do you know you're talking about my mother-in-law?"—New York Journal.

A Cow For a Life.

The Ober Gabelhorn is a peak notorious for the dangerous cornices which decorate its upper ridges. Of many accidents reported in connection with it perhaps the most remarkable, says G. D. Abraham in "Swiss Mountain Climbs," was the adventure which befell an amateur and his young guide. In passing along the dangerous final cornice it suddenly gave way under the amateur, and he went flying through space to apparent destruction. The guide at the other end of the rope seemed in hopeless plight, but with astounding presence of mind he flung himself down the opposite side of the ridge, thus saving two lives. The rope cut deep into the snow above, but held firm. The young guide's name was Ulrich Almer. His reward was a cow.

A Horticultural Puzzle.

"It's no use," sighs the nature wizard. "I may as well give up."

"What is bothering you?" we ask sympathetically.

"I got started a few years ago on a whim of mine. I took a head of cabbage and crossed it with a white potato and grew eyes on it; then I crossed that with a cornstalk and grew ears on it; then I crossed that with a squash and grew a neck on it; then I crossed that with a cocoanut and grew hair on it, but hanged if I can figure out what to do for a nose and mouth!"—St. Louis Republic.

Twist of the Pretzel.

The pretzel is capable of infinite possibilities in the matter of shape. It shows almost as many forms as do the leaves of trees. The construction of the pretzel may be not inaptly described in sailor terms. Its peculiar shape is attained in this way: A bight is taken in a roll of dough, and the ends are given a half twist and brought back upon the opposite sides of the bight. This process gives to the pretzel a heart shaped appearance, but no one ever ventured to hint that any sentimental reason existed for assigning this shape to such a prosaic thing as a pretzel. When the pretzel has been duly "varnished" it is subjected to a process of salting, and the thing is complete.—Harper's.

THE CONFEDERATE SOLDIER.

An Incident That Marked His Spirit and Independence.

In his "Glimpses of the Confederate Army" in the American Review of Reviews Randolph H. McKim writes:

"It seems to me as I look back that one of the things which stood out strongly in the Confederate army was the independence and the initiative of the individual soldier. It would have been a better army in the field if it had been welded together by a stricter discipline, but this defect was largely atoned for by the strong individuality of the units in the column. It was not easy to demoralize a body composed of men who thought and acted in a spirit of independence in battle.

"As an illustration of the spirit of the private soldier I recall an incident to this effect. Major General Gordon had organized a strong column to make a night attack on Grant's lines at Petersburg. When he was ready to move and the order to advance was given a Big Texan stepped out of the ranks and said:

"'General Gordon, this column can't move before 1 a. m. The men have a truce with the Yanks, and it ain't up till 1 o'clock.'

"The column did not move till that hour. The private in the ranks had taken command, and the major general recognized his authority."

PONGEES HARD TO MATCH.

Because Each Piece Is Made From One Lot of Raw Silk.

Pongee silk is the undyed silk of silkworms fed on the leaves of scrub oak chiefly, though other trees are used in some portions of the pongee district. The silk is produced almost exclusively in Shantung province and portions of north China immediately adjacent.

The real pongee cloth, made of this uncolored specially produced silk, is distinct from the pongees of commerce made in all colors from other silk. Each piece of cloth is made from a particular lot of silk, and therefore each piece varies from all other pieces in exact quality, weight and fineness and in a slight degree in color and other qualities.

There are certain general grades of cloth, certain varieties of weave, certain popular weights, etc., but women shopping in Chinese pongees find it very difficult to match pieces, and on the face of things it is practically impossible to furnish any great number of pieces of a certain weight, grade and quality such as a modern clothing manufacturing establishment would require to standardize a certain line of garments from that particular cloth.—New York Sun.

Located His Station.

There was an absentminded bishop in western Ontario, who was constantly finding himself in awkward situations, on account of his extreme abstraction. On a certain occasion he was traveling from London in a northerly direction and found when the conductor approached him that he had forgotten where he was to go. The conductor suggested that he telegraph from the next station and find out his destination. It was before the days of long distance telephones, and the bishop telegraphed to his wife from the first station, "Where was I going?" to be answered at the following station. The answer came, "Exeter; be sure to get off there." The bishop then beamed at the anxious conductor and remarked placidly: "These little difficulties always turn out satisfactorily."—Argonaut.

German Pedigree Book.

There is in Germany what is known as the "German Pedigree Book," or "Deutsches Geschlechterbuch." The purpose of the pedigree book, according to a Berlin correspondent, is to record the ancestry not of nobles, but of bourgeois persons who can prove that they are of genuine middle class or working class ancestry and have no noble blood in their veins. The editor explains in his preface that, while many German nobles "out of court and material considerations have not kept their blood pure, there are many good business class families which have managed to do so." By thus encouraging the proper pride of such families the pedigree book is doing much to eradicate the traditional envy of the nobles.

It Depends on the Dog.

Two Broadway business men met before a bar. They were good friends.

"I'm worried a little," said one. "My chauffeur ran over a dog today and killed it."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about a little thing like that," said the other. "The dog probably got in the way. These dogs are a pest."

"But it was your dog."

"What!" came from the second. "My dog? I'm sorry, but that will cost you $100. That chauffeur of yours is too careless. I insist on the hundred, understand."—New York Telegraph.

Cross Purposes.

"Can you tell me something about the game laws around here?" asked the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"Well," replied Three Fingered Sam "I could, but my advice to you would be if you don't know the rules of a game don't try to play it."—Washington Star.

Character.

Should one tell you that a mountain had changed its place you are at liberty to doubt it, but if any one tells you that a man has changed his character do not believe it.—Mohammed.

HUMAN SKULL PUZZLE.

A Cavity That May Have Been the Seat of a Sixth Sense.

Despite the progress of physiology the study of the human body is full of mystery. Some of its well known organs have never revealed either their uses or the reason of their creation. The part played by the spleen in human life was discovered but recently. It is now regarded as one of the principal agents in the circulation of the blood. But there are in the marvelous human organism mysterious parts which it is possible that no savant, however profound his learning, may ever understand. For instance, in the skull, behind the cartilage of the nose, there is a little cavity of unknown origin. Physiologists believe that at one time—several thousand generations ago—it contained a gland consisting of two lobes joined by their common base.

This cavity—the delta turcica—is, in the opinion of certain savants, the vestige of a sixth sense which was of great use to the antediluvian ancestors of man. It is believed that this little gland enabled them to see in the darkness when they had not yet learned the secret of procuring light; that it was the seat of the mysterious sense of situation or locality, the power to orient their course, the sense so highly developed to this day in savages and certain animals. The theory is plausible, but it is doubtful whether man will ever acquire any real knowledge of the reason for the existence of the delta turcica.—Exchange.

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier. "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades. At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground.

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

Work of the Locomotive Fireman.

To a husky young man shoveling twenty tons of coal a day may not sound like a terrible undertaking, but that is because he fails to appreciate the difference between shoveling that quantity in the course of a ten hour day, standing on a steady footing and pausing for a moment whenever he feels like it to gaze at the scenery or light a cigarette and trying to keep his balance on a jolting, jerking, plunging steel deck which tries ceaselessly to pitch him head first into the side of the cab, while with legs spread wide apart he humps over a scoop shovel, working with frantic energy to get coal into the firebox fast enough to keep steam up. While the engine is running the fireman must be straddled out on the deck, working continually to the limit of his strength, for ordinarily he will have to get from two and a half to three tons of coal into the firebox every hour. Three and a half tons is generally regarded as the limit of a fireman's capacity, but this has been greatly exceeded on the fastest trains.—Technical World Magazine.

The Music of Birds.

Birds are usually accounted the most musical of animals, yet it is very much of a task to set their notes to music. The reason is that birds are utterly negligent of the laws of harmony. There is not one of them, it is safe to say, that knows the difference between a major third and a dominant chord. This deficiency in musical knowledge is rather surprising when we consider how beautifully the birds sing and may be used as an argument to show that a theoretical knowledge is a humbug. But if birds knew more about harmony their songs could all be set down and quite a decent revenue derived from the sale thereof. Another reason why it is difficult to put the melody of the song birds into notes is that the quality of the tone is unlike any musical instrument. This is true of all birds except the thrush, whose song descends for the first three notes in perfect seconds and with much purity of tone.—From Old Scrap Book.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Priest's Advice Led to Their Recovery

Thin, weak, or frail people—those who "take cold easily" and sufferers of Bronchitis and Asthma, should be prepared with Eckman's Alterative in the house.

Remarkable cures of even Tuberculous (Consumptive) persons are often accomplished. Here are two instances:—

Gentlemen, "On Jan. 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular Peritonitis at St Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. After the operation my physicians gave me up. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 lbs. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 125 lbs., and am absolutely cured."
(Signed Affidavit) EDNA FINZER.
90 Savannah St., Rochester, N. Y.

Gentlemen: "I was troubled with Asthma and Bronchitis for seventeen years. After trying many remedies, Eckman's Alterative was recommended to me by our Parish Priest. I am now feeling fine. I cannot praise it enough."
(Signed Affidavit) Anna Mae McEntee.
Lacon, Ill.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists and

Tickets for the 500 were placed on sale yesterday afternoon and about $20.00 has thus far been realized. The business men who were approached yesterday with very few exceptions most cheerfully responded. Last fall a check was sent by the ladies to an institution in New Jersey to pay transportation to Charleroi for a boy whose sentence had expired. This was a drain upon an almost empty treasury.

The Charity 500 of Friday afternoon is a worthy affair and the public is again asked to contribute as generously as they conscientiously can. The method adopted for the charity in one that was deemed best for two women to undertake at this time. To secure a Glee Club means paying the club 60 per cent of the proceeds and asking people to entertain about 30 adults in addition to paying for the opera house and buying tickets. That is the reason for selecting this method of securing funds. All who have not purchased tickets and who wish to attend can pay at the door. The "500" begins at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Celebrated Silver Jubilee.

Rev. Robert McDonald, of Braddock, formerly pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church of Charleroi, on June 5 celebrated the 25th anniversary of his accession to the priesthood. He was accorded a silver jubilee by his congregation, who presented him with a purse of $2,000, which was augmented by a purse of $500 from the parochial schools, making $2,500 in all. Rev. McDonald was pastor in Charleroi in the early years of the town, and has many friends here to extend congratulations and good wishes.

May God Bless the Quaker Doctor, He Said

The Lot at the Quaker Show packed with people last Night in Spite of Rain---a Big Feature Saturday Night Will be Charleroi Amatures Competing for Cash Prizes

Not able to work for the past three months, after one treatment by the Quaker Doctor, Wm. Roesel 3 miles north of town walks once more without crutch or cane; over 50 years of age, the father of a large family, unable to work for three months, the future black and discouraging and then suddenly finding a cure in a short half hours-uch is the experience that comes to a man once in a life time.

Mr. Roesel who, as a painter and contractor has probably done more of this work than any other man around here, had retired from active work, leaving his sons to run the business, but this spring thought he would get same pleasure by painting his home himself, somthing he had done almost religiously every two years in the spring time. Whether the scaffolding which was shaky was the cause or a misstep, he is unable to tell, but that he fell 12 feet is a fact, landing with his entire weight on one foot. His screams of agony brought the folks, who assisted him into the house.

His ankle at once commenced to swell and since that time he has been unable to work with the exception of the last few weeks when he was able to get oua on the porch by the aid of two crutches.

One night last week one of his sons came in town and saw the Quaker Doctor curing deafness, base ball fingers, sprained ankles etc., publicly on his platform. He at once went home and told his father about what he had seen. At first Mr Roesel was skeptical, but he was finally pursuaded to telephone to the Quaker Doctor and see if he thought he could help him. He got the Doctor on the 'phone and to his surprise the Doctor, who is a finished linguist, addressing him in his own native German tongue, assurred his if he could get in town there was help awaiting him. Somehow it leaked out that he was coming and Thursday morning a large crowd was gathered around the Quaker Doctor's office when the carriage drove up and he was helped into the office, being carried up stairs.

The Quaker Doctor and his assistants started to work on the ankle and not without some protesting on the part of the patient at first. Gradually, however, the stiffened and twisted ligaments were loosened and pliable, the articulating bones of ankle and foot once more were moved without pain and in a short half hour he walked down stairs alone and unassisted and can be seen now almost any night in the Quaker Doctor's crowd. When the medicine which the Quaker Doctor used on his leg (the Quaker Oil) is offered for sale he insists on his friends buying some and usually buys a bottle himself.—Hamilton, O., Daily News.

The Quaker Doctor's success in Charleroi is little short of phenomenal. He came here two weeks ago with no preliminary advertising of any kind and now all day people wait patiently to see him at his office on McKean avenue opposite the Hotel Arthur while next door on the vacant lot vast crowds gather every night to see the cures and the performance. Next Saturday night as a special feature he gives away cash prizes to the amateurs and he says judging from the way the names are being handed in, there will be enough embryo Booths and Sotherns present to satisfy all who attend the free performance.

SUSPENSION OF PLATE GLASS WORKS ORDERED

Charleroi Affected by General Order Just Issued

MAY NOT BE FOR LONG

Surplus of Stock in Sales Room is Given as Reason of Close Down

For the purpose of curtailing plate glass production over the country until the surplus stock already on hand has been disposed of, an indefinite suspension has been ordered of several plants of the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company, and of practically all the independent plate glass manufacturing concerns. By the general order, the Charleroi plant will be affected, and operations will be suspended along with those at other plants on July 1. In the neighborhood of 700 men will be made idle locally.

Plate glass manufactories are about the least affected by a business depression. During the past several months the production of plate glass has been growing until now there is not a sales department of any plant in the country but what is overcrowded, making a suspension of manufacturing operations inevitable.

It is hoped that theshut-down will last only a month or so but it is possible it may be extended farther. Business conditions will be the gauge, and until the sales department is cleared of the surplus, the suspension will continue. As far as manufacturing conditions are concerned at the local plant, general results and quality of product were never better.

At factory No. 6 at Charleroi, of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, two departments will be kept in operation, the Carrara and Pot house departments. In these two parts about 100 men are employed.

A. H. Chandler, superintendent of the local plant, this morning said: "It is an impossibility to say how long the suspension will last. We hope only a brief time. The sales department is over-crowded and until this congestion is relieved, no start will be ordered. Other plate glass manufactories are effected including the independent factories. This is as much as I can say."

In the neighborhood of 700 men are employed at the Charleroi plate glass works, and the pay roll averages about $37,000 monthly. Charleroi is particularly fortunate that the factory did not close before, as business conditions are such that steel mills and other industries elsewhere have been idle the greater part of the year.

W. C. T. U. to Visit Merchants

Matter of Cigarette Selling to Minors to be Taken up by Women

At the residence of Mrs. J. S. Crawford of Lookout avenue the regular monthly meeting of the W.C. T.U. was held Tuesday evening. Regular routine bussiness was transacted, among which was a report of the committee on a public drinking fountain and the courteous hearing accorded them by the genial borough councilmen.

The result of the joint conference is that in the very near future Charleroi will have one and possibly two beautiful fountains, where both man and beast may slake their thirst. Committees were appointed to wait on the merchants dealing in tobacco and cigars, give them a copy of the law relative to the sale of cigarets and tobacco to minors and kindly ask them ta refresh their memory as to the penalty attached to the breaking of that important legislation. Miss Marie Whitehead than favored the Union with a recitation after which the meeting adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs R. J. Whitehead, Tuesday evening.

Proceeds of "500" Party to go for Juvenile Court

WORK THAT IS BEING DONE

On Friday afternoon the local Juvenile Court Committee will give a Charity 500 party in the Elks' Home and the patronage of the public is most earnestly desired. Nothing has been collected for this fund for three years and the committee is facing a depleted treasury with a constant demand upon it. During the year eight cildren have been placed in homes of maintenance through the efforts of this committee and the children thus cared for had transguessed no laws, but were simply denied their divine rights of a home and proper persons to care for them. This is not Juvenile court work, but the local committee has also in a manner been a home missionary board. During the year the Athene Club donated $5 which has been the only local contribution. Possibly no one knows so well as the police officers and the justices just how many appeals are made to the committee who gladly donate their services, but must kindly ask the assistance of the public for financial aid. The detention room for the court at the county seat has been removed from the jail and the delinquent children are cared for temporarily in a small home near the court house which is in charge of a matron. Here they are completely away from adult persons, and surrounded by good influences. Each Friday morning the youthful

Mother of Speers Man Struck and Instantly Killed During Electrical Storm at Connellsville

Harry Shelton, of Speers, who is employed by the plumbing firm of Regan and Hormell of Charleroi, Tuesday afternoon late received a telegram announcing the death of his mother a short while before at Connellsville, who was struck with lightning. Mr. Shelton and his sister, a girl about 16 years old, went to Connellsville this morning.

During the storm Tuesday afternoon Mrs Shelton, aged 42 years, and her daughter Cecelia, 14 years old, were papering an upstairs room. Mr. Shelton, who is partly crippled was in a lower room. When a brilliant flash of lightning came he felt an intense heat and a quiver of the house. He went up stairs and found his wife lying across a chair dead, her right shoe torn off and a line burned along her body to the head. The daughter was on the floor unconscious. The woman leaves a husband and nine children.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED FOR BUSINESS BLOCK

George S. Might to Put up Large Store and Office Building on Fifth and Fallowfield

EXCAVATION WORK TO BEGIN MONDAY

George S. Might this morning announced the award of the contract for the erection of his large store and office building to be built on recently purchased ground on Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue, surrounding the Charleroi Savings and Trust company, had been made to S. K. Scott, of Charleroi. The contract price was not made public. Work will start on Monday.

The building will occupy 50 feet front space on Fifth street and will extend back 94 feet. On Fallowfield avenue the building will have a frontage of 25 feet, at the rear of the Charleroi Savings and Trust company. Plans were drawn by Architect J. C. Brenton.

Two large store rooms will occupy the first floor, one of them extending to and having entrances on both Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue. A center entrance will be provided for office rooms on the second floor on Fifth street. On Fallowfield avenue a side entrance will be provided.

The second floor will be divided into 14 spacious office rooms, 12 of which will be in the main building and two of which will be in the Fallowfield avenue structure. A hallway will run the entire length.

On the third floor will be a large auditorium, fitted up for various purposes.

Windows will be cut in the building from all sides. The frame work will be of steel. The interior finish will be in hard wood. There will be a finished basement, to be used as a store room, or for whatever purpose necessary.

The automobile under which Coulter was working was supported by a jack This jack skidded and let the automobile down full force upon Coulter and a fellow employe. Coulter was the only one hurt.

LIGHTNING MAKES MERRY ABOUT TOWN

Frequent Flashes During Storm and Peals of Thunder Make People Nervous

With lightning playing hide-and-go-seek and heavenly artillery reverberating back and forth, a heavy thunder storm occured Tuesday afternoon in this vicinity. As far as can be learned no damage was done.

During the storm lightning grounded once near Fifth street, and people were given a bad scare by what seemed to be balls of fire leaping through windows and jumping around. Nobody was hurt.

"BOOSTER DAY" FOR CHURCH LEAGUE

Treasury is Somewhat Shy, and Effort Will Be Made to Replenish It

The help of base ball fans in general is respectfully solicited by the promoters of the Church Base Ball League in an endeavor to meet outstanding obligations. Prior to the opening of the season, an expense of over $200 was incurred in repairs to the fence around the grounds, repairs to the grand stand and other improvements. This, together with an investment of nearly $100 in balls and other necessaries placed a heavy burden upon the promoters, which could only be met by the receipts of the box office. Unfortunately the latter have not come up to expectations, and it has been deemed expedient to try to raise the necessary funds by other means. To this end, a "Booster's Day" has been decided upon, and the executive board of the league earnestly asks the support of all lovers of the game on this occasion. The date of June 19 has been chosen, and the contending teams will be the Catholices and the Methodists. The game will be called at the usual hour. Tags will be sold by members of the different teams and their friends, and a small admission will be charged the ladies.

THEN QUENCHES THIRST

Marching down the main street, evidence of rural civilization, with a cow attached to the business end of a rope, John Something-or-other, calmly hunted the nearest pole to the nearest saloon this morning, and as calmly made war on the merry hop juice. Then John, with a name like a Siberian cuss-word, calmly marched out of the said saloon, wiping his mouth, unhitched his cud-chewing bovine, and marched on. This was the vaudeville witnessed this morning by citizens in the business center of town. John seemed to think it was the precise thing to do to hitch his cow to the nearest telephone pole and consequently did it. It has not been learned whether he was emigrating to another locality or not. but he was headed north, and was thirsty.

County Commissioners Place Highway Work

OVER 21 MILES IN LOT

County Now Pays State Tax on $500,000 Bond Issue --Advertise Sale of Bonds.

Pursuing their policy of liberal public expenditures, the county commissioners on Tuesday authorized the improvement of 21 miles of the 51 1-2 miles of county roads for which they recently petitioned the grand jury, and which was approved by that body. There are 10 sections of the 21 miles located in various parts of the county. The longest section is 3 1-2 miles and the shortest section is half a mile, the average being 2 1-10 miles.

The commissioners also called for proposals for the purchase of the $500,000 bond issue for which they asked from the grand jury, and which was granted. These bonds are to be issued in series of $25,000 and are to date from August 15, 1911, maturing serially each year from 1912 to 1931. They are to bear 4 per cent interest, and be tax free. This latter provision means that the county will pay the State tax of 4 mills, making the interest rate in reality 4 and 4-10 per cent. The bonded debt of the county including this issue is $1,887,000 and the tax rate is $3.25 per $1,000.

BACHELOR GIRLS HOLD NICE DANCE

First Affair of Summer Season is Given by Popular Charleroi Club

With about 100 couples present, one of the most interesting dances ever given by the Bachelor Girls' Club of Charleroi, was held Tuesday evening at Eldora Park. The affair was the first summer dance to be given by the popular club, and people came from many places to attend it. With Wheeler's orchestrta furnishing the music dancing was from 8:30 o'clock until 1. A grand march which was led by the members of the Bachelor Girls' club, preceded the dancing. People was present from Brownsville Monessen, Charleroi, Monongahela, Donora, California, Fayette City, Pittsburg, Uniontown and other places

CONSERVING MORALS.

Because there is no safe place for small boys to swim along the river, four were drowned within our county limits last month. That was the coroner's report. Before the summer is ended the death toll will in all probability be greatly augmented by this source. If the public could provide what is lacking in this respect, there would have been no deaths on this account.

It is perfectly easy to trace cause and effect in physical matters. Four deaths in one month in one community because of public dereliction in what highly civilized communities provide, is a startling loss; but what about the moral delinquencies? How many small boys are corrupted each season during vacation because they have no rational place to play and amuse themselves? There is some objections in Charleroi to the appropriation by council to help maintain a playground Would there be any objections to this expenditure if it were known it would positively save the lives of the children of some of our citizens? Scarcely: and there should be no more objections to saving the morals as well as the lives of the juveniles.

There's a big crop of young hopefuls loosed from the apron strings for the first time this vacation. What will happen to them if permitted to roam at large, as the most of them do during vacation? They'll learn to cuss like pirates, shoot craps down on the river bank, smoke cigarets and become acquainted in all sorts of vile language and practices. Most parents think their own hopefuls are exceptions, but let each do a little private detective work, and they will more than likely receive a shock It is to prevent these shocks that the playgrounds is designed What safeguarded swimming pools do in saving life, the public playground accomplishes in conserving morals. The money appropriated by council for the playground is the best public investment ever made.

A GREAT WORK.

Until the women of this country, in comparatively recent years, took up the matter of juvenile court work, the men, who do the voting and make the laws, paid absolutely no attention to the childish delinquent. They heartlessly cast them into jails and prisons with the old hardened offenders. There their bodies and souls festered in the vile physical and immoral surroundings, and what the child did not know in vice, it usually acquired during its term of imprisonment.

It was largely through the agitation of the women that the juvenile court has been established. This court is for the purpose of dealing separately with youthful offenders, and to keep them from coming in contact with adult criminals. Very grudgingly has the Commonwealth co-operated in this work, the greater part of which has to be borne by private charity. For this reason the local committee is making an appeal for funds. It will hold a benefit function and the money thus obtained will be devoted to reclaiming delinquent children and preventing them from becoming criminals The committee has done a good work in Charleroi, and the charity that thus appeals for aid is most worthy.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"Do you believe in signs, warnings or premonitions?" was asked in a neighborly group the other evening Although there were only a few present, a couple of them had experiences to relate along that line which were hard to account for. One of these was told by a middle-aged man who does not in the least believe in the supernatural, and who is a level-headed man of practical business ability.

"I was born in Germany," as you are well aware," he said, "and lived with my grandparents on a farm in Bohemia. When I was about 10 years old, I remember that one night I was sleeping with my grandfather, when I was awakened by hearing a woman's voice, apparently outside, calling my grandfather's name—Joseph! Joseph!' the voice called imperatively.

"I awakened my grandfather, who was sleeping soundly, saying, 'Some one is calling you, Grandpap.' He awakened in time to hear the voice, and getting up, donned some clothing hastily, and went outside and looked around, but found nothing. In the morning at breakfast I remarked: 'Someap one called for grandp in the night.' My great-grandmother who lived with us, and was a women over 80 years old, said quietly, 'I suppose that means me.' Although she was in good health at the time, she died a week later.

"I afterward learned that it had long been a tradition in the family that previous to a death a voice in the night would call some one of the household. I never could account for the incident, but it made a deep impression upon me."

A women, a professional nurse, related a similar experience: "I was called to nurse a women, a farmer's wife. The farmer was also a contractor who built roads, and was away from home a part of the time. His wife was not bedfast when I went there, and it was largely on account of his absence that my services were secured. He came for me in his buggy, and we arrived at the farm house just before dinner.

"While we were eating in the dining room in the rear of the house, we heard a rap at the front door which was closed Before the man of the house could walk across the floor, the raps were repeated twice more, making three in all The man opened the door but could find no one. The house stood back 20 or 30 rods from the road and in the bright June sunlight it seemed impossible for any one to have gotten away so completely without being seen The man came back, after a search all around the premises, and while we were talking and wondering about the mystery the woman's mother, whom I had come to relieve, remarked in an agitated voice:

"There was no one there. It was a warning. Mary is not going to get well."

"Sure enough, the woman was taken worse a day or two after, and died within a couple of weeks."

The Mandarin's Robe.

The author of "Recollections of a Society Clairvoyant" tells of the case of a lady who was haunted by reason of a garment she wore It was a mandarin's robe from China, stated to be part of the loot from the sack of Peking The owner, who lived in a flat in a London suburb, first began to be alarmed by a smell of decomposition in her bedroom and heard "stealthy footsteps paddling along the tiny passage in and out of the sitting room." She changed her house but the obsession continued. The dreadful smell recurred, her cats died in great agony from some unknown cause, and uncanny footsteps were heard at night According to the clairvoyant's diagnosis, the robe had belonged to "a man who had worn it when he engaged in the mystic forms of ceremonial magic known to the Chinese He had met with a violent death, and certain malignant forces were still imprisoned in his robe which, from the bloodstains on it, he must have been wearing when he was killed" The curse was eventually dispelled by the robe being burned.

Ruskin and the Champion Bore.

One of the principal clubs in Pall Mall has the misfortune to be frequented by a gentleman who is by common consent the greatest bore and buttonholer in London. Some years ago this good man, on his return from his autumn holiday, was telling all his acquaintances at the club that he had been occupying a house at the lakes not far from Mr Ruskin, who, he added, was in a very melancholy state.

"I am truly sorry for that," said one of his hearers. "What is the matter with him?"

"Well," replied the buttonholer, "I was walking one day in the lane which separated Ruskin's house from mine, and I saw him coming down the lane toward me The moment he caught sight of me he darted into a wood which was close by and hid behind a tree till I had passed Oh, very sad indeed'"—From "Collections and Recollections."

Clean Your Glasses.

The most scientifically fitted glasses in the world will do more harm than good unless they are properly kept and correctly worn. It is a strong statement to make, but most people wear dirty glasses, even those who are fastidiously careful in all other respects Peering through any clouded and uncertain window is a strain upon the vision How much more must the strain be when the window is so close to the eye that it is almost a part of it!

Glasses must be worn at the exact angle for which they were prescribed and no other For this reason many people and all children do better in spectacles than in eyeglasses The glasses should be fitted to the eye by the optician, after which care should be taken not to handle and loosen the frame. If this occurs in the slightest degree they should again be fitted and tightened.—Youth's Companion.

HEFFRAN DEATH A SAD AFFAIR

Daughter of Coroner and Mrs. J. T. Heffran Beloved by Speers People

To the Editor of the Charleroi Mail:

Sir—One of the saddest deaths that ever occurred in this community was that of LillianBeazell Heffran the nine year old daughter of Coroner and Mrs James T. Heffran of Speers. Although she had been sick for seven weeks, her case did not become alarming until a few hours before her death Besides her father and mother she leaves one sister Hazel and one brother, Harold. Lillian was the baby and naturally a favorite, not only at home but in the town. She was a pleasant loving girl, who met everybody, young and old with a smile and pleasant words. The writer has always known her and always found her to be a girl admired by all who knew her.

On Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Methodist church at Speers with interment in the Howe cemetery. That she was loved by everybody was plain to see. Long before the hour for the services the church was filled to overflowing, and by the time the church was reached by the funeral it was found that not over one-half the people could gain an entrance to the church. The aisles and rear of the church were filled and we may say scarcely standing room on the church lawn. Every available seat was taken except the one Lillian always occupied in her Sunday school class.

Rev. L Z. Robinson had charge of the services and was assiste by a former pastor, W. F. Seitter and Rev. Richards of the Charleroi M.E. church The singing was furnished by a part of the M. E. choir of Charleroi and was greatly appreciated not only by the immediate friends, but by all. The beautiful floral tributes were beyond anything ever witnessed by the writer. A number of sprays were sent and brought from Washington and other points away from home and that Lillian was loved by her own Sunday school and church was proven by the fact that ten sprays came from her own Sunday school and church, When the carriage came with the flowers eight young ladies met it and carried them to and from the church.

It was indeed a sad day at Speers There were no dry eyes. Such a feeling cannot come over such a crowd of people very often and as her little girl friends bore her little body from the church the grief that overwhelmed all her playmates and in fact every bady will long be remembered Lillian will not only be missed in her own home but in all homes she called on, and will be missed by all. While she has gone to her home in Heaven and is better off than those who miss her, yet one little voice is silent in our town. In school and Sunday school entertainments she was a leader of the children, always prepared and spoke and sang with a smile. In the Children's Day next Sunday evening her response song will be missed.

A FRIEND.

When on last Friday evening little Lillian Heffran entered into Heaven, there came a change over every man, women and child in this little town. Certainly a death always brings sorrow to friends and acquaintenances but there was something about this sweet little girl that caused her to be known to the adult population, better perhaps, than nine-tenths of the children living in a small village.

A little more than nine years of age neat in appearance, a quiet disposition, a pretty childish smile that rarely disappeared, is it surprising that she was loved by everyone? When the little casket was placed in the church Sunday afternoon, it was the center piece of a mass of beautiful flowers, sent by the several Sunday school classes and by individual friends from far and near. During the funeral services the class to which Lillian belonged was seated in their usual place wkith one little empty chair draped in mourning. Their teacher, Mrs C. K. Chalfant, sat with them and tried ta console them, but one by one they broke down and sobbed as though their little hearts would break. It finally became necessary to allow them to go back to their parents yet this did not stifle the pitiful weeping that was visibly affecting the older ones.

On Easter Sunday Lillian had taken part in the exercises and her manner of reciting had caused comment, even among strangers from other towns. She was to assist in the Children's day program and her piece had been assigned her, but recently she sent word to the committee that "she was afraid she couldn't recite."

Although Lillian Heffran is not here anymore, she will be remembered by her little playmates and by the older people who loved her because she was a sweet child, and for her sweet disposition The sorrowing family have the sympathy of their many friends and the consolation of knowing that some day they will live with Lillian again, forever.

PAINTED HIS PORTRAIT.

His Wife Was the Artist, and the Result Wasn't Flattering.

A suburbanite but lately married went out to post a letter, and as the lamps had not been lit in the road in which he dwelt he could only dimly see his way. A short distance up the road he met, as he thought, his wife, who had been out to tea, and as he went past he just whispered:

"All right, my dear; I shall be with you in a minute"

Immediately after he had said these words he saw the lady turn a startled look upon him and then hurry away, and the horrible idea occurred to him that it was not his wife at all and that in the darkness he had made a mistake He decided to say nothing about the matter and quickly disappeared.

When he returned home he found his wife waiting for him, and she at once greeted him with the words:

"Oh, George, I have had such a frightful experience! I was just coming down the road when a man tried to stop me and said, 'All right, dear; I shall be with you in a minute.' I ran home, found you out, and I've been so much alarmed."

George was just about to explain when an idea came to him.

"What sort of man was it?" he asked.

"Oh," replied the young wife, "I saw him quite plainly, and a more villainous face I never beheld in my life. He was a perfect monster, with crime stamped upon every feature."

George decided it was best to say nothing after all.—London Tit-Bits.

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American Independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. Instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous [illegible] about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

The Kangaroo Rat.

One of the queerest little animals of the antipodean wilds of the paradoxical continent of Australia is a little zoological oddity which the naturalists have called the kangaroo rat. It averages no larger than the common rodent of the Norway variety, but is a miniature kangaroo in every respect. Its mode of locomotion is precisely the same as that of Macropus gigunteus. Besides this, the female carries its young in pouches which nature has provided for that purpose and in many other respects imitates the habits and characteristics of its gigantic relative.

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE.

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "instituts." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, college and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1806 this vast educational organization, with its countless professors, who control the entire intellectual training of France.—America.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next. One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr. Macready what he would play with Mr. Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed. "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr. Kean. "Sir," said Mr. Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Analogies.

"I understand your friend Jenkins has resigned that city clerkship he held."

"Resigned? H'm!"

"Oh, wasn't it voluntary?"

"Well, it was just as voluntary as his contributions to the campaign fund were."—Philadelphia Press.

Drilled to Perfection.

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him. Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles. One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swinging into a fierce charge upon the enemy. By daylight the Russians and Poles, who had thought to eat him up, were virtually annihilated.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson's Revenge.

Tom Osborne, the bookseller, was one of "that mercantile rugged race to which the delicacy of the poet is sometimes exposed."

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most liberal manner. Johnson heard him some time unmoved, but at last, losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor. Osborne alarmed the family by his cries, but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir until he had exposed him in that situation and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—From Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

The American Born Princess.

My father, Prince Napoleon Lucien Charles, was in exile in the United States, and so it happened that I was born in America on the borders of the Delaware. I came into the world with the last sigh of the old year—that is to say, at midnight on the 31st of December, 1833. I have said that my father was in exile. When he was eleven years old his mother left Naples with her four children—two boys and two girls—and retired to the Chateau de Frohsdorff, taking the title of Comtesse de Lipona—Napoli transposed. There my father lived till he was joined by his uncle, the Emperor Napoleon's eldest brother, King Joseph of Spain, who on the fall of the first empire had retired to the United States and taken a lovely place near Bordentown, N. J., where he lived for eleven years as Count de Survilliers. It was at Bordentown that I entered this sorry world, my father having in 1831 married a Miss Carolina Georgina Fraser of Scotch origin, descending from the old family of Lovat.—Princess Caroline Murat's "Memoirs."

A Shock to Vanity.

"My wife gave me a birthday present that has a tendency to take the conceit out of any man who thinks he's good looking. [illegible] shaves himself. "I confess that I have all along had a sort of speaking idea that I had a little more than my share of manly beauty; that when it came to a showdown I was there with the goods. But not any more. I'm cured. And my wife's present did it. What was it? Why, simply one of those shaving glasses that magnify three times. The first time I used it I got a view of my face that rather startled me. Every blemish, every wild hair under the skin, every open pore, all the minute ugliness that isn't apparent to the naked eye—these things confronted me in all their magnified repulsiveness. I used the glass just once and then accidentally dropped it down the air shaft to the basement below. I don't want to look like a monstrosity every time I shave myself."—New York Times.

The Addition.

"What makes you act so grouchy this morning, Dobkins?"

"Had an addition to my family."

"What? Why, you ought to be ashamed to be gloomy over that! To think that a normal human being should be angry because of the advent of such a cherub! Do you actually grudge a place in your happy home to an innocent creature fresh from heaven, bringing with it the very fragrance of those celestial realms? Do you greet with an unwelcoming chill a small epitome of all purity and sweetness given into your keeping as a priceless though undeserved treasure by a too benevolent Providence? A lovely copy of what fancy feigns the angels to be like—a tiny shred of grace and glory snatched from the"—

"Say, that's very pretty, but do you know you're talking about my mother-in-law?"—New York Journal.

A Cow For a Life.

The Ober Gabelhorn is a peak notorious for the dangerous cornices which decorate its upper ridges. Of many accidents reported in connection with it perhaps the most remarkable, says G. D. Abraham in "Swiss Mountain Climbs," was the adventure which befell an amateur and his young guide. In passing along the dangerous final cornice it suddenly gave way under the amateur, and he went flying through space to apparent destruction. The guide at the other end of the rope seemed in hopeless plight, but with astounding presence of mind he flung himself down the opposite side of the ridge, thus saving two lives. The rope cut deep into the snow above, but held firm. The young guide's name was Ulrich Almer. His reward was a cow.

A Horticultural Puzzle.

"It's no use," sighs the nature wizard. "I may as well give up."

"What is bothering you?" we ask sympathetically.

"I got started a few years ago on a whim of mine. I took a head of cabbage and crossed it with a white potato and grew eyes on it; then I crossed that with a cornstalk and grew ears on it; then I crossed that with a squash and grew a neck on it; then I crossed that with a cocoanut and grew hair on it, but hanged if I can figure out what to do for a nose and mouth!"—St. Louis Republic.

Twist of the Pretzel.

The pretzel is capable of infinite possibilities in the matter of shape. It shows almost as many forms as do the leaves of trees. The construction of the pretzel may be not inaptly described in sailor terms. Its peculiar shape is attained in this way: A bight is taken in a roll of dough, and the ends are given a half twist and brought back upon the opposite sides of the bight. This process gives to the pretzel a heart shaped appearance, but no one ever ventured to hint that any sentimental reason existed for assigning this shape to such a prosaic thing as a pretzel. When the pretzel has been duly "varnished" it is subjected to a process of salting, and the thing is complete.—Harper's.

THE CONFEDERATE SOLDIER.

An Incident That Marked His Spirit and Independence.

In his "Glimpses of the Confederate Army" in the American Review of Reviews Randolph H. McKim writes:

It seems to me as I look back that one of the things which stood out strongly in the Confederate army was the independence and the initiative of the individual soldier. It would have been a better army in the field if it had been welded together by a stricter discipline, but this defect was largely atoned for by the strong individuality of the units in the column. It was not easy to demoralize a body composed of men who thought and acted in a spirit of independence in battle.

"As an illustration of the spirit of the private soldier I recall an incident to this effect. Major General Gordon had organized a strong column to make a night attack on Grant's lines at Petersburg. When he was ready to move and the order to advance was given a Big Texan stepped out of the ranks and said:

"'General Gordon, this column can't move before 1 a. m. The men have a truce with the Yanks, and it ain't up till 1 o'clock.'

"The column did not move till that hour. The private in the ranks had taken command, and the major general recognized his authority."

PONGEES HARD TO MATCH.

Because Each Piece Is Made From One Lot of Raw Silk.

Pongee silk is the undyed silk of silkworms fed on the leaves of scrub oak chiefly, though other trees are used in some portions of the pongee district. The silk is produced almost exclusively in Shantung province and portions of north China immediately adjacent.

The real pongee cloth, made of this uncolored specially produced silk, is distinct from the pongees of commerce made in all colors from other silk. Each piece of cloth is made from a particular lot of silk, and therefore each piece varies from all other pieces in exact quality, weight and fineness and in a slight degree in color and other qualities.

There are certain general grades of cloth, certain varieties of weave, certain popular weights, etc., but women shopping in Chinese pongees find it very difficult to match pieces, and on the face of things it is practically impossible to furnish any great number of pieces of a certain weight, grade and quality such as a modern clothing manufacturing establishment would require to standardize a certain line of garments from that particular cloth.—New York Sun.

Located His Station.

There was an absentminded bishop in western Ontario, who was constantly finding himself in awkward situations, on account of his extreme abstraction. On a certain occasion he was traveling from London in a northerly direction and found when the conductor approached him that he had forgotten where he was to go. The conductor suggested that he telegraph from the next station and find out his destination. It was before the days of long distance telephones, and the bishop telegraphed to his wife from the first station, "Where was I going?" to be answered at the following station. The answer came, "Exeter; be sure to get off there." The bishop then beamed at the anxious conductor and remarked placidly: "These little difficulties always turn out satisfactorily."—Argonaut.

German Pedigree Book.

There is in Germany what is known as the "German Pedigree Book," or "Deutsches Geschlechterbuch." The purpose of the pedigree book, according to a Berlin correspondent, is to record the ancestry not of nobles, but of bourgeois persons who can prove that they are of genuine middle class or working class ancestry and have no noble blood in their veins. The editor explains in his preface that, while many German nobles "out of court and material considerations have not kept their blood pure, there are many good business class families which have managed to do so." By thus encouraging the proper pride of such families the pedigree book is doing much to eradicate the traditional envy of the nobles.

It Depends on the Dog.

Two Broadway business men met before a bar. They were good friends.

"I'm worried a little," said one. "My chauffeur ran over a dog today and killed it."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about a little thing like that," said the other. "The dog probably got in the way. These dogs are a pest."

"But it was your dog."

"What!" came from the second. "My dog? I'm sorry, but that will cost you $100. That chauffeur of yours is too careless. I insist on the hundred, understand."—New York Telegraph.

Cross Purposes.

"Can you tell me something about the game laws around here?" asked the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"Well," replied Three Fingered Sam, "I could, but my advice to you would be if you don't know the rules of a game don't try to play it."—Washington Star.

Character.

Should one tell you that a mountain had changed its place you are at liberty to doubt it, but if any one tells you that a man has changed his character do not believe it.—Mohammed.

HUMAN SKULL PUZZLE.

A Cavity That May Have Been the Seat of a Sixth Sense.

"Despite the progress of physiology the study of the human body is full of mystery. Some of its well known organs have never revealed either their uses or the reason of their creation. The part played by the spleen in human life was discovered but recently. It is now regarded as one of the principal agents in the circulation of the blood. But there are in the marvelous human organism mysterious parts which it is possible that no savant, however profound his learning, may ever understand. For instance, in the skull, behind the cartilage of the nose, there is a little cavity of unknown origin. Physiologists believe that at one time—several thousand generations ago—it contained a gland consisting of two lobes joined by their common base.

This cavity—the delta turcica—is, in the opinion of certain savants, the vestige of a sixth sense which was of great use to the antediluvian ancestors of man. It is believed that this little gland enabled them to see in the darkness when they had not yet learned the secret of procuring light; that it was the seat of the mysterious sense of situation or locality, the power [illegible] highly developed to this day in savages and certain animals. The theory is plausible, but it is doubtful whether man will ever acquire any real knowledge of the reason for the existence of the delta turcica.—Exchange.

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier. "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades. At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground.

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

Work of the Locomotive Fireman.

To a husky young man shoveling twenty tons of coal a day may not sound like a terrible undertaking, but that is because he fails to appreciate the difference between shoveling that quantity in the course of a ten hour day, standing on a steady footing and pausing for a moment whenever he feels like it to gaze at the scenery or light a cigarette and trying to keep his balance on a jolting, jerking, plunging steel deck which tries ceaselessly to pitch him head first into the side of the cab, while with legs spread wide apart he bumps over a scoop shovel, working with frantic energy to get coal into the firebox fast enough to keep steam up. While the engine is running the fireman must be straddled out on the deck, working continually to the limit of his strength, for ordinarily he will have to get from two and a half to three tons of coal into the firebox every hour. Three and a half tons is generally regarded as the limit of a fireman's capacity, but this has been greatly exceeded on the fastest trains.—Technical World Magazine.

The Music of Birds.

Birds are usually accounted the most musical of animals, yet it is very much of a task to set their notes to music. The reason is that birds are utterly negligent of the laws of harmony. There is not one of them, it is safe to say, that knows the difference between a major third and a dominant chord. This deficiency in musical knowledge is rather surprising when we consider how beautifully the birds sing and may be used as an argument to show that a theoretical knowledge is a humbug. But if birds knew more about harmony their songs could all be set down and quite a decent revenue derived from the sale thereof. Another reason why it is difficult to put the melody of the song birds into notes is that the quality of the tone is unlike any musical instrument. This is true of all birds except the thrush, whose song descends for the first three notes in perfect seconds and with much purity of tone.—From Old Scrap Book.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 51 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Priest's Advice Led to Their Recovery

Thin weak, or frail people—those who 'take cold easily' and sufferers of Bronchitis and Asthma, should be prepared with Eckman's Alterative in the house. Remarkable cures of even Tuberculous (Consumptive) persons are often accomplished. Here are two instances.—

Gentlemen: "On Jan. 3, 1907, I was operated upon for Tubercular Peritonitis at St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, N. Y. After the operation my physicians gave me up. I was then urged by a priest to take Eckman's Alterative, which I did. My weight at the time was 72 lbs. I began to improve and steadily gained in health and strength. I now weigh 125 lbs., and am absolutely cured."
(Signed Affidavit) EDNA FINZER.
90 Savannah St., Rochester, N. Y.

Gentlemen: "I was troubled with Asthma and Bronchitis for seventeen years. After trying many remedies, Eckman's Alterative was recommended to me by our Parish Priest. I am now feeling fine. I cannot praise it enough."
(Signed Affidavit) Anna Mae McEntee.
Lacon, Ill.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists and offenders are given a private hearing before the court which is guided in its judgment by the testimony of the probation officers and the committees from the communities were the transgressor lives.

ARRANGE BENEFIT

Tickets for the 500 were placed on sale yesterday afternoon and about $20.00 has thus far been realized. The business men who were approached yesterday with very few exceptions most cheerfully responded. Last fall a check was sent by the ladies to an institution in New Jersey to pay transportation to Charleroi for a boy whose sentence had expired. This was a drain upon an almost empty treasury.

The Charity 500 of Friday afternoon is a worthy affair and the public is again asked to contribute as generously as they conscientiously can. The method adopted for the charity in one that was deemed best for two women to undertake at this time. To secure a Glee Club means paying the club 60 per cent of the proceeds and asking people to entertain about 30 adults in addition to paying for the opera house and buying tickets. That is the reason for selecting this method of securing funds. All who have not purchased tickets and who wish to attend can pay at the door. The "500" begins at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Celebrated Silver Jubilee.

Rev. Robert McDonald, of Braddock, formerly pastor of St. Jerome's Catholic church of Charleroi, on June 5 celebrated the 25th anniversary of his accession to the priesthood. He was accorded a silver jubilee by his congregation, who presented him with a purse of $2,000, which was augmented by a purse of $500 from the parochial schools, making $2,500 in all. Rev McDonald was pastor in Charleroi in the early years of the town, and has many friends here to extend congratulations and good wishes.

May God Bless the Quaker Doctor, He Said

The Lot at the Quaker Show packed with people last Night in Spite of Rain---a Big Feature Saturday Night Will be Charleroi Amatures Competing for Cash Prizes

Not able to work for the past three months, after one treatment by the Quaker Doctor, Wm. Roesel 3 miles north of town walks once more without crutch or cane; over 50 years of age, the father of a large family, unable to work for three months, the future black and discouraging and then suddenly finding a cure in a short half hours-uch is the experience that comes to a man once in a life time.

Mr. Roesel who, as a painter and contractor has probably done more of this work than any other man around here, had retired from active work, leaving his sons to run the business, but this spring thought he would get same pleasure by painting his home himself, somthing he had done almost religiously every two years in the spring time. Whether the scaffolding which was shaky was the cause or a misstep, he is unable to tell, but that he fell 12 feet is a fact, landing with his entire weight on one foot. His screams of agony brought the folks, who assisted him into the house.

His ankle at once commenced to swell and since that time he has been unable to work with the exception of the last few weeks when he was able to get out on the porch by the aid of two crutches.

One night last week one of his sons came in town and saw the Quaker Doctor curing deafness, base ball fingers, sprained ankles etc., publicly on his platform. He at once went home and told his father about what he had seen. At first Mr Roesel was skeptical, but he was finally pursuaded to telephone to the Quaker Doctor and see if he thought he could help him. He got the Doctor on the 'phone and to his surprise the Doctor, who is a finished linguist, addressing him in his own native German tongue, assurred his if he could get in town there was help awaiting him. Somehow it leaked out that he was coming and Thursday morning a large crowd was gathered around the Quaker Doctor's office when the carriage drove up and he was helped into the office, being carried up stairs.

The Quaker Doctor and his assistants started to work on the ankle and not without some protesting on the part of the patient at first. Gradually, however, the stiffened and twisted ligaments were loosened and pliable, the articulating bones of ankle and foot once more were moved without pain and in a short half hour he walked down stairs alone and unassisted and can be seen now almost any night in the Quaker Doctor's crowd. When the medicine which the Quaker Doctor used on his leg (the Quaker Oil) is offered for sale he insists on his friends buying some and usually buys a bottle himself.—Hamilton, O., Daily News.

The Quaker Doctor's success in Charleroi is little short of phenomenal. He came here two weeks ago with no preliminary advertising of any kind and now all day people wait patiently to see him at his office on McKean avenue opposite the Hotel Arthur while next door on the vacant lot vast crowds gather every night to see the cures and the performance. Next Saturday night as a special feature he gives away cash prizes to the amateurs and he says judging from the way the names are being handed in, there will be enough embryo Booths and Sotherns present to satisfy all who attend the free performance.

SUMMER SHOES
It is easy enough to pick out a stylish looking shoe in a window but how often have you done this and found the style would not fit you?
If you thought about fit alone it would be a simple matter to buy shoes, or if all you had to worry about was good leather.
A combination of style, fit and quality is what goes to make up shoe satisfaction.
This is doubly hard to find in summer shoes, but we are waiting to show you how easily we can give you such satisfaction at our store. You will find a wide assortment of styles, leathers and prices, standard brands to back our judgment.
